Learning Opportunities

My Elijah Costume, Your Miriam's Cup: The Ritual Objects of a Really Cool Seder

Rabbi Lilly Kaufman will bring her faves and will describe the origin and purpose of each. Participants are welcome to bring their own cherished or fun objects that make for a great Seder, and tell us about them!

Rabbi Lilly Kaufman joined Adath Jeshurun Congregation in August as Director of Jewish Learning. Born and raised in New York, she was chief maror-grater of a small synagogue in Connecticut before the big move to the Upper Midwest. Brrrrrrrr.

Exodus: Returning Joseph's Bones

Joseph and his brothers brought us to Egypt. There are hints in the Torah that they are the reason for our liberation as well. Come learn how to integrate the Joseph narrative into your Seder.

Rabbi Shosh Dworsky is Associate Chaplain at Carleton College, and a rabbi/teacher at large in the community.

Beyond Maxwell House: Creating Your Own Haggadah

There is a rich array of Haggadot that give expression both to the central story of Pesach as well as to important contemporary ideas and messages. We will have the opportunity to review a variety of Haggadot as well as learn about what is central to the Seder experience as the core for creating your own Seder Haggadah.

Rabbi Lynn C. Liberman is Director of Congregational Learning for Beth Jacob Congregation

Changing the order (seder) of the Order (Seder)

How strictly must one stick to the order of the seder? What is the significance of the order? What are reasons and halakhic justification for changing the order?

Rabbi Dr. Gil Nativ is the rabbi of Magen Avraham in Omer, Israel, and a former president of Israel's Rabbinical Assembly.

Songs of the Seder : When Dayenu Isn't Enough

You know the basic tunes and the all time traditional favorites. Now, learn some new tunes to enhance your Seder and make it an even more joyful evening!

Hazzan Art Shragg is the cantor at B'nai Emet Synagogue and an active teacher and musician throughout the Twin Cities community.

"The Fifth Question: What Shall We Eat Tonight? Easy Meals for the Passover Week"

Tired of the same old Passover recipes? Join us for a fresh look at holiday weekday meals that are fast, fun and flavorful. Zehorit Heilicher brings to the kitchen her Mediterranean roots, her passion for healthy and flavorful dishes and her love of people and storytelling. Teaching in the Twin Cities for the past 10 years, she shares her appreciation for the way culture and history shape our food and the way we gather to eat it.
